

Your career awaits!

Eastern Aleutian Tribes is seeking qualified applicants for a Community Health Aide Trainee (CHAT).

Working together to promote healthy communities

Working collaboratively with other healthcare providers and first response teams, Community Health Aides (CHA) provide primary care (acute, chronic and preventative) and emergency care to a wide variety of patients in his/her assigned village. The Community Health Aide (CHA) program is a tiered program, beginning with the Trainee and advancing through four levels until achieving full certification as CHA Practitioner (CHAP). While on the job, the CHAT will spend a significant amount of time learning via formal and informal instruction, shadowing, self-study, etc. For example, there is a minimum of five training sessions in Anchorage ranging from one-four weeks in duration.

The incumbent is an integral part of the community in which he/she serves; commitment and dedication to continuity and quality of care is imperative for success. Likewise, innovative and creative problem solving, collaboration and patience, and determination are competencies that help define the ideal CHA, whether it's a Trainee or a fully certified Practitioner.
